

THE INDIAN MINERS.

Coal Operators Protest Against Any Sympathy by the Governor.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 13.—A committee of coal operators from Clay county visited Gov. Hovey yesterday to protest against any act on the part of the executive indicative of sympathy with the strikers. They declare that the scale offered the miners is the highest possible for them to pay, and that if they met the miners' demands the mines would be operated at a loss.

It had been intimated that the governor might issue a proclamation showing sympathy with the strikers. Such action, they declare, would encourage the strikers not to return to work, and thus increase the present suffering. The governor would not indicate that he would issue such a proclamation, and the miners will call on the governor today to lay their grievances before him.

RUSSOPHOBIA IN ENGLAND.

An Attack of that Disease Caused by the Czar's Treatment of the Shah.

LONDON, June 13.—One of the intermittent attacks of Russophobia, characteristic of British politicians, is now at its height. The czar, to use the Standard's expression, has again shown his hand. His atrocious conduct toward the poor shah who came to Russia by invitation, and was bullied in a manner that was anything but an auspicious prelude to a pleasure jaunt, has proved that the tyrannical disposition and the treacherous policy of the Russian monarch are likely to be exhibited at any time in spite of all professions of peaceful intentions. The London journals assert in more emphatic tones than ever that the czar is not to be permitted to have a slice of Persia, big or little, and the shah is to be made much of in order to impress him with the might of England's forces.

ESPECIALLY HER NAVAL SUPERBITY.

English officers who have taken the trouble to master the original languages, especially the Persian, have now accepted the fact of the czar's policy, and those who have done sufficient violence to inborn prejudices to learn Russian are particularly in demand. It is wise to be prepared beforehand, and this sudden inrush of subscribers to these unusual attainments is significant. But while some treat it as a lullaby, others are not so easily lulled. They are not so easily lulled as two score British officers have lately qualified in the Russian language, probably not less than five thousand of the British army, and the czar and his wife English fluently, besides knowing the dialects of various Asiatic tribes and nations.

Professions of dissatisfaction in India are, as a general thing, contemptuously referred to by the English authorities there as bazar talk, and the protest of educated Hindus to the effect that the czar is not to be permitted to have a slice of Persia, big or little, and the shah is to be made much of in order to impress him with the might of England's forces, is not so easily taken as a lullaby.
